WOMAN'S RELIEF

A really healthy woman has little pain or discomfort at the menstrual period. No woman needs to have any. Wine of Cardui will quickly relieve those smarting menstrual pains and the dragging head, back and side aches caused by falling of the womb and irregular menses.

WINE OF CARDUI

has brought permanent relief to 1,000,000 women who suffered every month. It makes the menstrual organs strong and healthy. It is the provision made by Nature to give women relief from the terrible aches and pains which blight so many homes.

Chenoweth, N. Y., Oct. 14, 1904. I have been very sick for some time. I was taken with a severe pain in my side and could not get any relief until I tried a bottle of Wine of Cardui. Before I had taken all of it I was relieved. I feel it my duty to say that you have a wonderful medicine. Mrs. M. A. TOWN.

An Ancient Foe

To health and happiness is Scrofula—as ugly as ever since time immemorial. It causes hunches in the neck, disfigures the skin, inflames the mucous membrane, wastes the muscles, weakens the bones, reduces the power of resistance to disease and the capacity for recovery, and develops into consumption.

"A bunch appeared on the left side of my neck. It caused great pain, was lanced, and became a running sore. I went into a general decline. I was persuaded to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, and when I had taken six bottles my neck was healed, and I have never had any trouble of the kind since." Mrs. E. T. KATZ, Troy, Ohio.

Hood's Sarsaparilla and Pills

Now Look Out!
"Take care of yourself," say our friends. "I'll try to," we answer. We do take a little care, yet in spite of warm clothes, rubbers and mackintoshes, an army of people were bowled out by pneumonia and other lung and chest diseases last winter. That's what happened to you. If you think you are needed, get a cold, neglected it, let it sit upon them, were torn by coughs, choked by inflammations and congestions, wasted by fever, first then by pain and then gave up the fight. The door you realize that you have a cold on the chest, place a Bannan's Perforated Plaster where the pain or oppression is felt. If you think you are needed, make it two. No harm if you were covered with them. They act quickly and prevent the engagement of blood in that organ. In this way—with ordinary caution as to exposure—you will break up the cold and avoid a serious sickness. No other application, or any other form of treatment, will accomplish this as certainly and speedily. Bannan's Plasters have a distinct and positive action and are convulsive to the highest degree. Use them with the same confidence for coughs, muscular rheumatism, the grip (back and chest) and all other ailments. Women, who are child-bearing, should keep these plasters always within reach. Get the genuine. All druggists, or we will supply postage on any number ordered in the United States on receipt of 25c each. Send to J. C. Bannan, N.Y. or Chicago, N.Y.

state having failed to prove his guilt. As the man turned to leave the room, the girl drew a revolver and began firing. The first shot took effect in Pattison's back. Several other shots were fired, causing a panic in the court room and corridors. Seeing her victim fall, the young woman turned the weapon against herself and inflicted a serious wound. Physicians are as yet unable to determine whether the woman and her victim are fatally hurt, but the opinion is that both will recover.

An Old Citizen Passes Away.

Mr. James A. Thomas died Friday afternoon at his residence in Hartford, after an illness of three months, of a complication of troubles incident to old age. For many weeks he lingered battling against the inevitable, but ere the end came, he made all necessary arrangements for the comfort of his family and passed from life to the realm of the spirit land as peacefully as falling asleep. He was seventy-nine years old and leaves a family, his widow and three daughters, Nelsa Stella, Rita and Lillie.

About sixty years ago Mr. Thomas came to this country from Virginia and settled in Hartford. Back in the early forties he was engaged extensively in farming, making numerous trips to New Orleans and other points on the Mississippi. He was very active all through life as was evinced in the latter years of his existence. He was Quarter Master of the 12th Kentucky Cavalry during the Civil War, stationed at Owensboro for some time. After the close of the war he returned to Hartford and engaged in the mercantile business, and at the time of his death was conducting the same line of business.

During his productive period he amassed a nice little fortune, which is left to his family. He also had Hartford losses one of her oldest and most valued citizens. He lived in Hartford longer than any other man now living and perhaps longer than those who have gone to their reward.

After funeral services, conducted by Rev. G. J. Bean, at the family residence, the remains of the aged townsman were interred in the Oakwood Cemetery in the presence of many friends and neighbors.

Behind Closed Doors.

Indianapolis, Jan. 28.—The U. M. W. closed their doors this afternoon against newspaper men, so that discussion of the report of their Scale Committee could not be made public. Guards were stationed at the doors, after the newspaper men left to see that no one broke in.

It was reported before the convention began that the committee had agreed to present a demand for a general advance for bituminous miners equivalent to 10 per cent. in run of mine basis and a differential of seven cents a ton between pick and machine mining.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Secretary Long has received a telegram announcing that Rear Admiral Lewis A. Kimberly, United States Navy, retired, died at West Newton, Mass., this morning. Admiral Kimberly was selected for service on the Schley Court of Inquiry, but was compelled to decline on account of ill health.

Coming This Way.

The Y. M. C. A. has secured the services of Miss Gay Zenola McClaran for the 7th of February. The entertainment promises to be an intellectual treat. The young lady comes highly recommended and will unquestionably entertain in a most fitting manner those who give ear on the evening of the 7th. Below will be found clippings from the press where she has been:

Miss Gay Zenola McClaran gave a recital of Wilson Barrett's drama "The Sign of the Cross" before a large and delighted audience at 231 Street Y. M. C. A., May 7. It was her first appearance in the Metropolis, and it is not too much to say that she secured a phenomenal success.—New York Talent.

Miss Gay Zenola McClaran, who presented "The Sign of the Cross" at Music Hall last night, was an instant favorite. Her dramatic abilities were at once recognized, and she was encored again and again.—Troy Standard.

Miss McClaran's delineation of the different characters in Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet" showed great talent. Her work as Juliet and the nurse was exceptionally fine, while all the characters given deserve especial mention.—Minneapolis Progress.

Miss Gay Zenola McClaran is a reader of remarkable talent. She has made her own condensation of the famous play "The Sign of the Cross" which gives her an excellent opportunity to show her ability for the personification of different characters. She presents the vivid scenes with ease, and commands the closest attention of her hearers from the beginning to the end. Miss McClaran is one of the youngest impersonators on the platform and also one of the most talented.—Minneapolis Journal.

He was first cruelly tortured. His face was beaten out of shape, his ears were torn nearly off by squaws, and other horrible tortures were being applied when Deputy United States Marshal David arrived from Arizka. I. Poisoned Sausage.
Petersburg, Ky., Jan. 28.—Some one put poison on pieces of Wienerwurst and scattered them about the streets. A little son of Mrs. Andrews found one and was eating it when his mother saw him and took it away from him. In a few moments he was in great agony. A stomach pump saved the little fellow's life. Later eight dogs were found on the river bank, where they had gone for water after eating the poisoned sausage.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

AUNT MARIAR'S DREAM.

Aunt Mariar Allenworth was a kind-hearted old maiden lady, some fifty years old. She lived in a small, neat three-room cottage in Tolt county, Ky. There were five acres of ground attached to the cottage and on this she, with the assistance of her nephew, Jim, managed to eke out a bare existence.

Jim Robertson, the nephew, was a steady going, hard working boy, and was kept busy making the garden and taking the vegetables to market.

Late and early this thrifty pair could have been seen busily engaged about the farm, well kept place, he attended to the chickens and turkeys and skimming the rich yellow cream from the pails of milk, getting it ready for the daily churning, while he gathered the fresh vegetables in the early morning, tying them in bunches ready for the market wagon.

Every morning during the vegetable season for the last fifteen years, the little one-horse wagon had been regularly hitched up and made the trip to town some three miles distant, and constant use in sun and rain had cracked the hubs, loosened the spokes, warped the fellows and worn out the running gear, until this ransacked old vehicle was in such a dilapidated condition the wheels would not track and the fellows were held in place by wire and rope.

How to obtain a new wagon was a question that had long been on the mind of the worthy woman, and as the product of the little garden could not be marketed without one, the wagon question was a momentous one.

One Saturday afternoon Jim returned from the village, having disposed of his stock of vegetables, and as he deposited the proceeds of the day's sales in the old lady's hands, said:

"Aunt Riley, I saw the nicest new wagon in front of Baker & Moore's to-day. It was just the very thing we need; has a spring seat and a low bed and the price is only forty dollars."

"Forty dollars!" exclaimed Aunt Mariar, with uplifted head. "Why boy, how you talk; don't you know it took every cent I could rake and scrape to pay this year's taxes; don't talk to me about a new wagon now. I don't see any chance to get one this year unless some one would give it to me, and there's no likelihood of that, I know."

"Yes, there's a way to get it, Aunt. I asked Mr. Moore if he would let me have it on credit and pay for it out of this year's strawberries and vegetables; he said: 'No, but let it run over till next year, and he said he would. I tell you what, Aunt Mariar, he is a good friend of yours.'"

"No, indeed; I won't get it on credit. Why, Jim, I couldn't sleep o' nights if I was owing that much money. I never made any debts in my young days and I am sure I will not begin it when I'm old. So we will have to wait until next year and make the old one last as long as possible."

Nothing more was said about the new wagon until one Sunday about three weeks after the above conversation. While returning from church in company with some of her friends, including Judge Sloan's wife and daughter, Aunt Mariar turned to them and said: "I must tell you my dream. I would not have thought so much about it if I had not dreamed the same thing three times in succession and it made such a lasting impression on my mind I can't forget it. On Thursday night, I dreamed I was standing by that rose bush in the corner of the yard—you remember that large bush that blooms so late in the season and is always so full of roses? Well, I was picking off the dead stems when my foot struck against an old tin can half buried in the dirt. I paid no attention to it at the time and would have probably forgotten the matter altogether had I not, after making a circuit of the bush, struck the same object the second time with the same foot. I then stooped to pick it up and saw it was an ordinary tin can about one-third full of dirt. I pitched it from me, intending to throw it in a tubbin' pile in the lot; it struck against the fence and fell back in the yard. I went and picked it up the second time and saw a yellow piece of metal lying in the mouth of the can. An examination of it, it proved to be a ten dollar gold piece, and as I hurriedly emptied the remainder of the dirt out of the can, four more of the gold pieces fell out, making in all fifty dollars, and don't you know the very first thing I did in my dream, was to go right down to Baker & Moore's and say that one horse wagon. On Friday and Saturday nights I dreamed the same thing, and I dream it again o' nights. I am certainly going to that rose bush in the morning and looking for that tin can."

Her companions remarked on the repetition of the dream and said it was at least very peculiar.

Judge Sloan's little girl had listened attentively to the relation of the dream and as soon as she reached home, went to her father and told him of Aunt Mariar's dream, adding: "Oh, papa, wouldn't it be nice if that rose bush would come true; and say, papa, why couldn't it? You could give me the money and will find an old

Something New Under The Sun.

All Doctors have tried to cure Catarrh by the use of powders, acid gases, inhalers and drugs in paste form. Their powders dry up the mucous membranes causing them to crack open and bleed. The powerful acids used in the inhalers have entirely eaten away the same membranes that their makers have aimed to cure, while pastes and ointments cannot reach the disease. An old and experienced practitioner who has for many years made a close study and specialty of the treatment of Catarrh, has at last perfected a treatment which when faithfully used, not only relieves at once, but permanently cures Catarrh by moving the cause, stopping the discharges, and curing all inflammation. It is the only remedy known to science that actually reaches the inflamed parts. This wonderful remedy is known as "Snuffles" and is sold at the extremely low price of One Dollar each package containing internal and external medicine sufficient for a full month's treatment and cure of "Snuffles" to its perfect use.
